Population Movements and the Third World (Routledge Introductions to Development) Mike Parnwell
The interrelationship between migration and development is complex. The causes of migration stem from the unevenness of the development process and the effects exert a powerful influence on the pattern and process of development. This volume explores both the concepts and facts behind the main forms of population movement in the third world today, particularly rural-urban migration. Examining the causes and consequences of migration, the author assesses the implications for planning and policy-makers.
